Occupy swells with supporters

Police have standoff with protesters sitting in the street ◗ Multiple marches brought hundreds through Downtown Boston ◗ Mass Nurses Association, college students show solidarity with entrenched occupiers

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO

▶ Hundreds of students from colleges across the Hub walked out of class to join with protesters as part of the Occupy Boston movement. Similar protests were held across the nation yesterday.

Occupy Boston activists got the blessing of unions and universities yesterday as hundreds of people jumped on the downtown takeover effort and took to the streets in protest.

Northeastern University students left class and rallied through the Hub toward the encampment in the Financial District before plopping down in defiance, blocking the road to traffic alongside the "occupods" that have inhabited Dewey Square.

"I believe in what they are saying, and not doing something is not an option," said Ben, 18, an NEU student.

Police were present, but made no arrests, allowing protesters to "exercise their rights," said BPD Deputy Superintendent Darrin Greeley.

"If they keep pushing on us, stretching the limits, they will be arrested," he said after a 15-minute showdown and negotiation on Atlantic Avenue that ended with protesters moving back on the sidewalk and police thanking them.

An hour later, several busloads of workers from the Massachusetts Nurses Association swarmed Tent City Square and marched "in solidarity" with "occupods" through Downtown Boston, waving signs like "Some Cuts Don't Heal."

In two separate displays of civic disobedience, Boston's roadways were shut down yesterday so the growing group could strut through the city chanting their mantra: "This is what Democracy looks like." Their purpose is fighting what they call inequities in government and banking institutions.

In their first march yesterday, more than 150 protesters staked out in front of the Goldman Sachs offices at 125 High Street, blocking off entrances, banging drums and locking arms before taking over the front steps of the Bank of America building in a similar fashion moments later.

Some ripped up dollar bills, tossing them in the air, while others invited gawkers on the sidewalks to join the occupation as they all chanted, "We are the 99 percent."

Massage parlor busted

BOSTON. Police working undercover busted up a Chinatown massage parlor that was apparently a front for prostitution.

After receiving complaints from community members, undercover police went in Tuesday night and were able to discover that workers in the Hudson Street parlor were offering sexual services.

They arrested the operator, Linping Gu, 50, of Boston, for allegedly deriving earnings from a prostitute. METRO

Cops hunt for alleged murderer

BOSTON. Police are asking for the public's help in searching for a Boston man wanted for murder.

Kendrick Clark, 37, allegedly shot 29-year-old Shawn Flores to death in Mattapan last month.

Police found Flores with a gunshot wound near Blue Hill Avenue and Abbot Street on Sept. 22.

Hope, uncertainty on Causeway Street

- Fans excited over tonight's season opener for the Stanley Cup champs
- But with Celtics' season in doubt, businesses may not see the green

Between winning the Stanley Cup and the possibility that the parquet floor will remain boxed up due to a lockout, black and gold have taken over.

A steady stream of fans clutching Bruins clothing and banners circled the aisles of the pro shop yesterday ahead of tonight's season opener.

But whether the hype surrounding the start of the season for the Stanley Cup champion Bruins will make up for the potential erasing of Celtics home games remains to be seen.

However there's still optimism in and around the Garden.

"We're trying to stay positive," Kristin Morrissey, a manager of the Boston Beer Works on Canal Street, said when asked about the potential lack of a basketball season. "Especially with the Bruins coming off of the Stanley Cup win, we're hopeful that'll make up for it."

Garden officials are keeping their fingers crossed as well, and a spokeswoman for the Garden said they "remain optimistic" the NBA season will stay intact.

Steve McGregory of Canton was one of the fans at the pro shop yesterday buying Bruins items. He said he believes the possible loss of the basketball season is dangerous.

"You don't want to see the pros go through this stuff. There's no winners in any of these contract disputes," he said.

Steve Jobs logs off, age 56

Apple co-founder loses battle with cancer Built up one of the world's most beloved and valued corporations

Steve Jobs, the co-founder and former CEO of Apple, has died, the company announced late last night. He was 56.

"Apple has lost a visionary and creative genius, and the world has lost an amazing human being," a statement from Apple read. "Those of us who have been fortunate enough to know and work with Steve have lost a dear friend and an inspiring mentor. Steve leaves behind a company that only he could have built, and his spirit will forever be the foundation of Apple."

Jobs co-founded the computer, media and electronics giant with Steve Wozniak in 1976 but left eight years later, returning in 1996 to reinvigorate Apple and bring about a string of successful innovations, including the iMac personal computer, the iPod, the iPhone and the iPad.

Quoted

"Steve's brilliance, passion and energy were the source of countless innovations that enrich and improve all of our lives. The world is immeasurably better because of Steve." APPLE INC.

With his health a matter of public concern for years, Jobs underwent surgery for pancreatic cancer in 2004. After leaves of absence for medical reasons in 2009 — during which he received a liver transplant — and earlier this year, Jobs officially resigned on Aug. 24, stating in a letter at the time that he could "no longer meet [his] duties and expectations as Apple's CEO."

"His greatest love was for his wife, Laurene, and his family," an Apple, Inc. statement read. "Our hearts go out to them and to all who were touched by his extraordinary gifts."

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

There is no stopping skinny girl Bethenny Frankel

Bethenny Frankel has never been shy about admitting her ambition.

The 40-year-old climbed the reality TV show ladder, starting with "The Apprentice: Martha Stewart" in 2005, and then was cast on "The Real Housewives of New York City" in 2008 even though, as a struggling single chef, she didn't really fit the "rich housewife" profile. From "RHONYC," her star — and brand — rose. And this year, she was able to sell her Skinnygirl Margarita cocktail mix for a whopping $120 million dollars.

Thanks to that huge sale, she's one of the top female earners in the entertainment world, according to Forbes.com. They list her at No. 3 with a worth of $55 million (between May 2010 to May 2011). Oprah Winfrey remained No. 1 on with $290 million in earnings; Lady Gaga came in second with $90 million. Forbes notes that Frankel is trying to expand her brand with food, supplements and a possible talk show. Gisele Bundchen, Taylor Swift, Ellen DeGeneres and Judge Judy Sheindlin each earned $45 million last year and tied for fourth place.

Maybe, in the end, reality TV does pay?

Bethenny Frankel is very, very rich.

Pattinson tops Glamour's sexiest list

It looks like Glamour readers are huge "Twilight" fans. Robert Pattinson topped the mag's list of the world's sexiest men, with his "Twilight" co-star Taylor Lautner coming in second. "Over 40,000 Glamour readers cast their votes in the most hotly contested list of the year," says editor Jo Elvin. "And while the 'Twilight' saga men continue to dominate our Sexiest Men list, Glamour readers have shown they have eclectic tastes to say the least — from silver fox, 50-year-old George Clooney, to a barely legal Justin Bieber." Also on this list: Bradley Cooper, Gerard Butler, Alex Pettyfer and Ryan Reynolds.

Talking points

Seyfried wants fame-free boyfriends

Amanda Seyfried

While she remembers her relationship with Dominic Cooper fondly, Amanda Seyfried says dating Ryan Phillippe has put her off dating other celebrities. "Dominic and I were together for such a long time, so the coverage was always positive, but when you've just started seeing someone and that person is really famous, it's more of a story," the actress tells Glamour magazine. "When I was with Ryan, people followed me so much more, and that's probably one of the reasons that I'm not looking to date someone who's famous now."

Arquette keeps talking about dead marriage

While David Arquette and Courteney Cox have remained close throughout their yearlong separation, a rekindling of their marriage doesn't seem likely, Arquette admits to Access Hollywood. "We're pretty much in the friend zone," he says. "Though we love each other and we love to laugh and have a great time, it's difficult." And the state of their relationship isn't something either has hidden from their 7-year-old daughter, Coco. "Kids know everything — they know a lot. They feel it, they sense it," Arquette explains. "I was really honest with her throughout the whole experience. There's not much we don't communicate about."

Depp wants you to take that camera away

Johnny Depp is not a fan of getting his picture taken. In fact, he tells Vanity Fair that when it comes to photo shoots, "You just feel like you're being raped somehow. Raped. The whole thing. It feels like a kind of weird — just weird, man. Whenever you have a photo shoot or something like that, it's like — you just feel dumb. It's just so stupid." But Depp, who's made a fortune from the "Pirates of the Caribbean" movies, isn't so much afraid of stupid things, including stupid salaries. "If they're going to pay me the stupid money right now, I'm going to take it," he says of some of his film roles. "I have to. I mean, it's not for me. Do you know what I mean?"

5 Movies to catch this weekend

Must-see

1 'Real Steel' A movie about boxing robots sounds like something a couple of studio executives came up with after a few too many. But yes, it's real, and Hugh Jackman is starring in it. And robots will, indeed, box.

2 'Ides of March' George Clooney directs and stars in this political thriller based on the Broadway play "Farragut North" about an ambitious political strategist (Ryan Gosling) who finds his integrity challenged by a cynical political world during the Democratic primaries. Backs will be stabbed — very nice-looking backs, at that.

3 '50/50' We're not sure that audiences will be breaking down the doors trying to see a comedy about a 27-year-old coping with cancer, but if Seth Rogen's showing up to the party as his best friend, maybe everyone else will join in.

4 'What's Your Number?' Anna Faris' city girl learns that the more people she's slept with, the less likely it is she'll find love. She goes on a mission to reconnect with every ex she's ever had in order to settle down.

5 'Dream House' Real-life newlyweds Rachel Weisz and Daniel Craig bring their believable sizzle to this haunted-house thriller. METRO

'Shore' enough, the drama's still there

'Jersey Shore' housemates Vinny and Sammi dish on roommates, hooking up and looking fresh to death Their advice for global travel

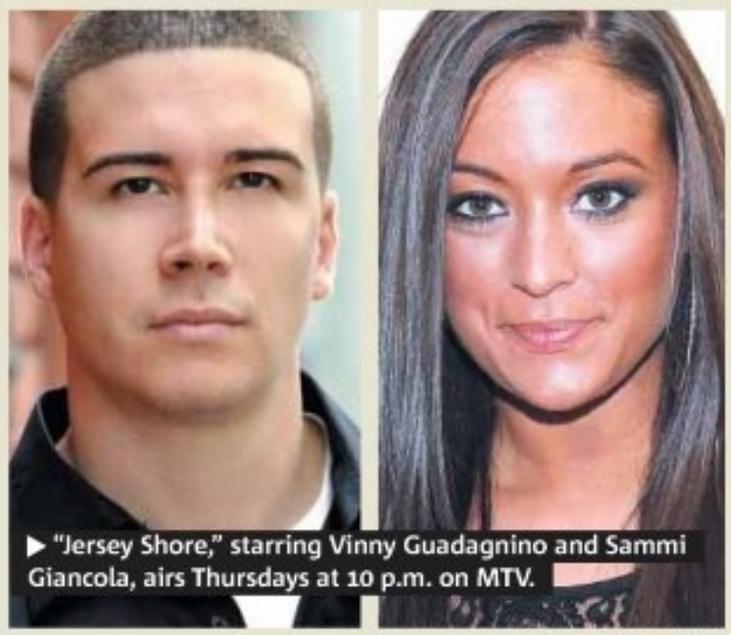
You can take the crew out of Jersey, but you can't take the Jersey out of the crew. Season 4 of MTV's "Jersey Shore" is in full swing, with the cast tearing up Florence, Italy. As usual, there's plenty of drama.

"It's been pretty bananas," cast-mate Vinny Guadagnino tells Metro. "We saw the big Mike and Ronnie fight — there are more of those. But at the same time, you see us connect with Italy more."

His fellow castmate, Sammi "Sweetheart" Giancola — whose love life with bad boy Ronnie Ortiz-Magro has been a focal point of the entire series — is just glad to have less of a hand in this season's commotion.

"All the drama's primarily off me," she says. "Now everybody can see me in a different way."

When these two aren't causing trouble, they're keeping plenty busy on their side projects, and both strive to help their fans stay fresh to death: Vinny is the spokesman for Philips Norelco DIY Hair Clipper Pro, and Sammi has her own perfume, Dangerous, which she describes as "dangerously sweet — just like me."



▶ "Jersey Shore," starring Vinny Guadagnino and Sammi Giancola, airs Thursdays at 10 p.m. on MTV.

MTV/GETTY IMAGES

"I pick my brands like I pick my women: I like quality," Vinny laughs, adding that he could get behind the clippers because he's a big proponent of a fresh haircut — he hits the barber every five days!

"I have really thick Sicilian hair and if it grows in, it just turns into a big fro," he admits. "People think if you have long hair you've gotta [maintain] it — no, if you have short hair, all you have is the fade, and once that grows in, you need a haircut already."

Sammi, who was hands-on with the production of the fragrance, notes: "It was something that I thought represented me."

But does her focus on perfume mean that things have cooled with Ronnie?

"We're still together and everything's going really, really well," she says.

MEREDITH ENGEL
meredith.engel@metro.us

Words of wisdom

What was the best piece of travel advice you got before leaving for Italy?

Vinny: My Uncle Nino told me if the girls have hair underneath their arms, then they're over 18. I was always giving the armpit check.

Sammi: Make sure you get the right plug to bring with you, because in Italy the electricity is different. I had an issue with doing my hair, so just make sure you know what the outlets are gonna be like when you travel.

Paris Fashion Week

Louis Vuitton

Always a directional force, Marc Jacobs took a completely different approach to spring after last season's sexed up vamps and kinky boots. Instead, he sent out girly girls dressed in pastel-colored lace confections who posed and preened on a massive merry-go-round. But these women in shades of lemon drop, cotton candy and baby blue were anything but saccharine, flashing the tiniest decorated briefs under their lady-like coats. The collection seemed to be the exclamation point on the soft and sweet moment that has emerged from Paris, with other houses such as Givenchy and Chanel showing subversive takes on staples of feminine dressing.

iPhone 4S, contracts and Siri: Everything you need to Know

Get the details on what you can expect next from Apple ● How the iPhone 4S differs from the iPhone 4

SARAH KESSLER FOR Mashable
The Social Media Guide

Apple gathered the world's tech press at its headquarters in Cupertino to announce its latest products this week. Here's a handy summary of what's new:

▶ The iPhone 4S looks almost exactly like the iPhone 4, but has a better camera and, according to Apple Vice President Phil Schiller, runs "up to seven times faster" than its predecessor. The phone will cost $199 for a 16 GB model and $299 for a 32 GB model. It will be available for pre-order on Oct. 7 and start shipping Oct. 14.

▶ Siri, a new iPhone 4S feature, is voice activation on steroids. Because it is capable of parsing natural human language, it can respond to a question such as "What is the weather like today?" with an answer it finds online, such as a weather report. It can read messages, search Wikipedia, make a calendar appointment, set a reminder, search Google Maps and more.

▶ Apple is giving away its 8 GB iPhone 3G — with strings attached. The free phone comes with a new two-year contract. You'll also be able to purchase the iPhone 4 for $99 with the same contract. Both pricing options will go into effect when Apple releases the 4S on Oct. 14.

▶ Sprint is getting the iPhone 4S. Becoming the third carrier to offer the iPhone is a big bet for Sprint, which has reportedly agreed to purchase $20 billion in iPhones regardless of whether or not it can sell them.

▶ The new iPod Nano has watch-like features and bigger app icons.

Stuck in the middle, again

Last year the extremist wing of the Republican Party gave us the Tea Baggers. Now the radical wing of the Democratic Party has responded with the Occupy Wall Streeters. The yang has balanced out the yin, but the 80 percent of us in the middle are still stuck listening to the fringes.

CARL HANSON, VIA E-MAIL

Credit card fees are class war

Why isn't anyone talking about the usurious credit card interest rates? The banks, financed by government bailout loans, are making a fortune on the misfortunes of the struggling masses. The rich do not have these bills, only the struggling multitudes. Take your heads out of the air, friends, and vote to take their hands out of our pockets.

STAN THOMPSON, VIA E-MAIL

Media loves communists

The Occupy protestors are communists and traitors! The liberal bias of the mainstream media is on full display as they fawn over the radical left wing Occupy Wall Street and similar spinoff rallies. These rallies are festering with people who openly despise America, and are quite candid in their wanting to see the collapse of capitalism. The same liberal mainstream media giving full coverage and praise of what are essentially communist gatherings did nothing but vilify the Tea Party gatherings. The Tea Party protesters are the real Americans, and they are the ones who have a genuine love for this country. Many of the protestors are idiotic college kids who don't know squat about the way the world works; but the people backing them are the traitors to America, and they need to be arrested.

CHARLES STEPHENSON, SOMERVILLE

Main street media needs to tell it like it really is: A communist rally — evidenced by the backing in the media and Internet of Van Jones and Frances Piven (among others), both self-proclaimed communists. How about these protesters going to union headquarters and asking how much the union leaders earn on the backs of the workers dues for their own personal and political gains? These protesters are sheep being used and led by the radical, far-left organizations — 1939 Germany, here we come!

Horoscope

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Today's events could turn out to be rather beneficial for you, especially if you have plans with someone who has proved lucky for you in the past.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Utilize any special knowledge or expertise you've acquired that could benefit you as well as special friends who are involved with you in a project. Something positive will come of it.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. The excellent impression you'll make on everyone you come in contact with will be both favorable and lasting. Where you'll really shine is in one-on-one relationships.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Lady Luck will do her best to help you develop some new channels to achieve your needs as well as your wants. Don't coast, however, because she may not stick around very long.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. If you work from a structured agenda and do the toughest jobs first, you'll be amazed at how well things will turn out for you and how pleased you'll be with your accomplishments.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. An extremely tough matter can be put to rest if you make it your priority to do so. Whenever you're dealing with something of this ilk, know that it cannot be done in bits and pieces.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Although you may be comfortable with certain ideas, there is a good chance they'll appear to be a bit too grandiose for others. The reason: You'll be using different methods of measurement.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Because your material prospects look exceptionally good, don't put off until tomorrow what you can easily take care of now. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

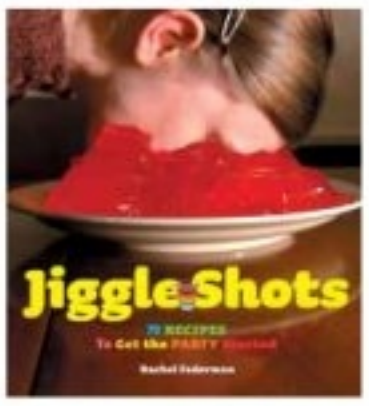
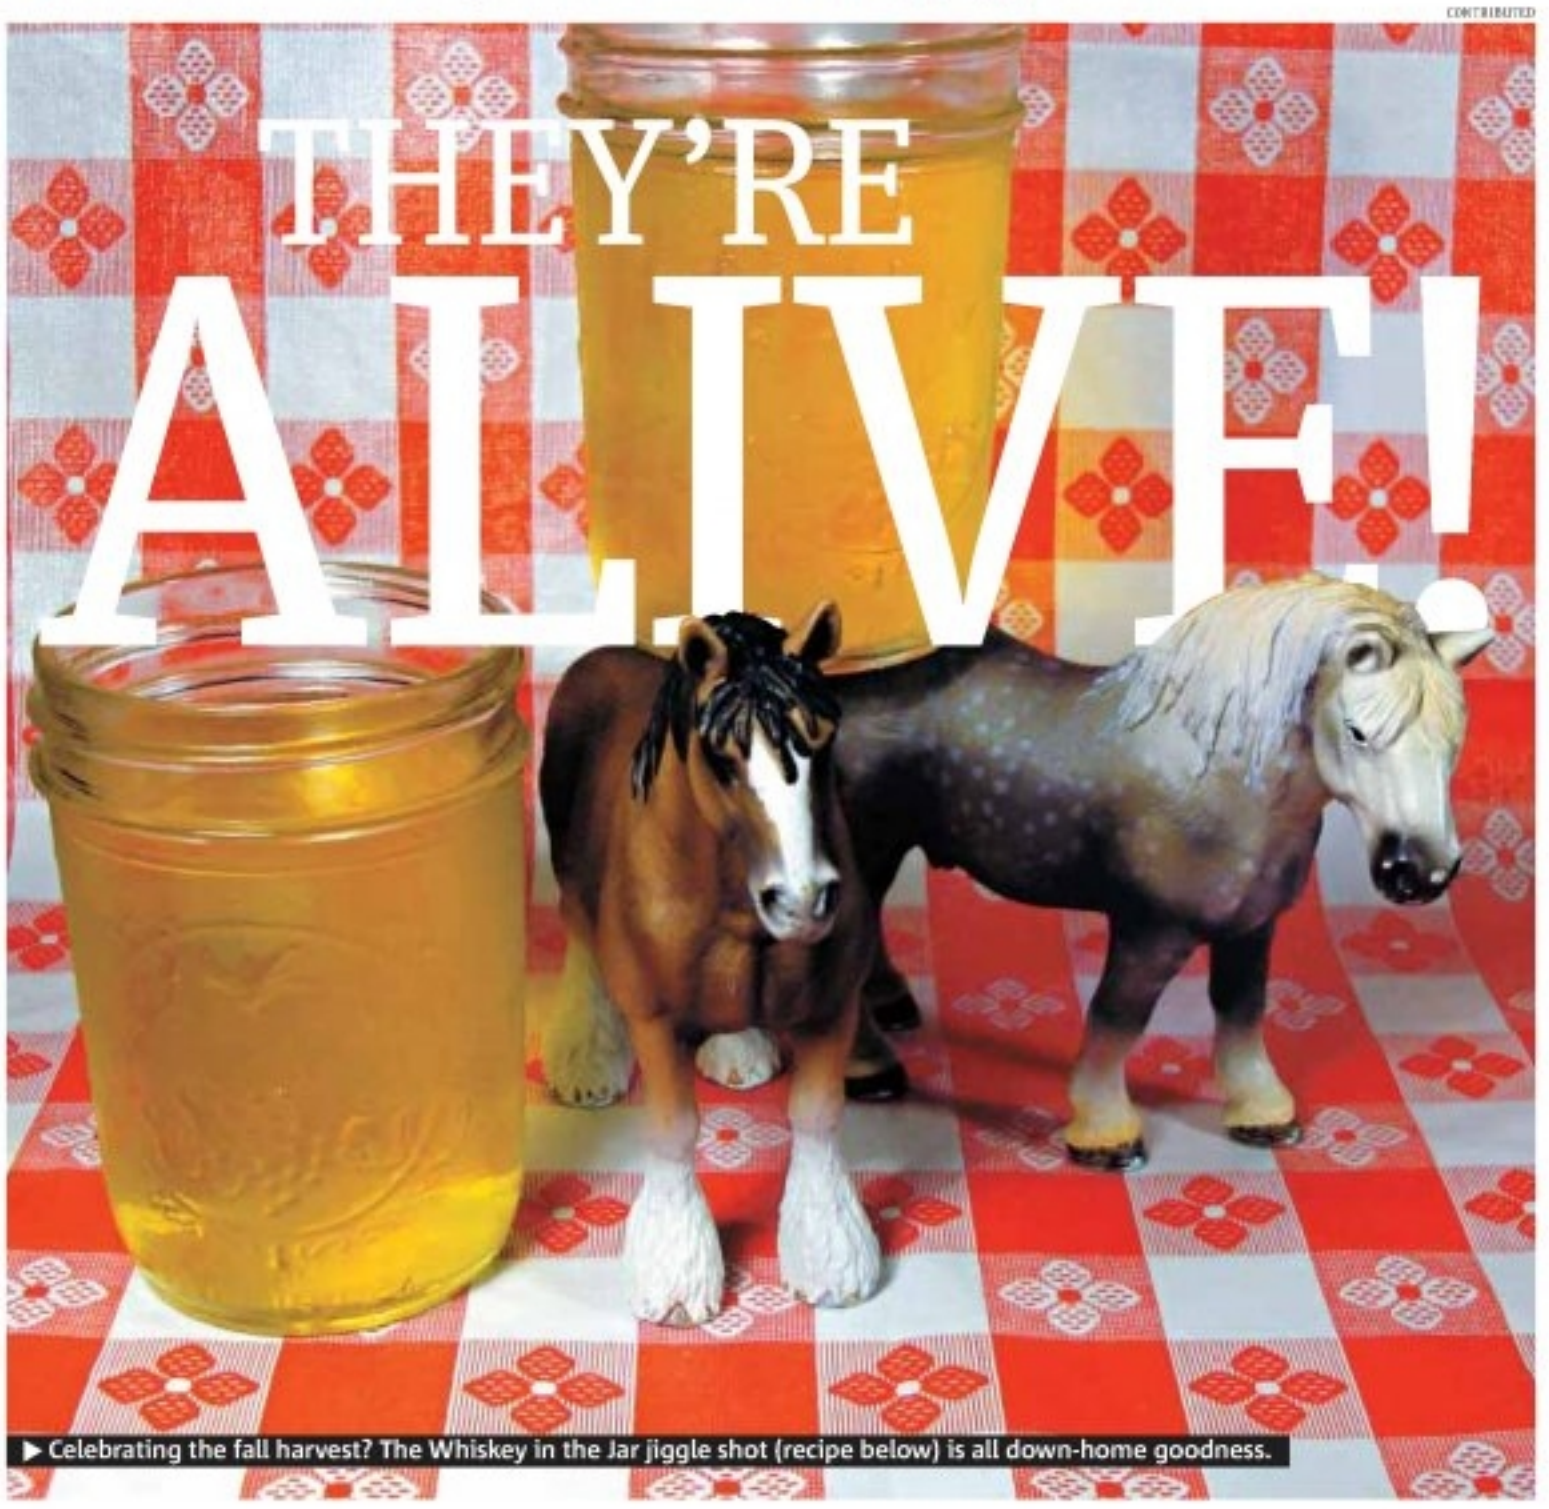
When was the last time you did a Jell-O shot? College, you say? That's about to change with the new book, 'Jiggle Shots'



THEY'RE ALIVE!

CONTRIBUTED



▶ Celebrating the fall harvest? The Whiskey in the Jar jiggle shot (recipe below) is all down-home goodness.

Jell-O shots — much like their corrupted dessert cousins, special brownies — usually only surface on college campuses.

But Rachel Federman suspects that the kitschy cocktails still have a place in your sticky little heart. Her new book, "Jiggle Shots," features 75 playful recipes — from almost-sophisticated bellinis and mimosas to drunken Gummy Bears suspended in grain alcohol.

But before you start slurping, consider a utensil this time around. "I always thought the whole idea was to scrunch the cup and gracefully pop a Jell-O shot into your mouth while winking at some intriguing stranger across the room," says Federman. "But it's really too much for one bite, and the whole fun is how good they taste, so I recommend a spoon."

Make your own: Whiskey in the Jar jiggle shot

What you need
- 1 ounce fresh lemon juice
- 6 ounces chilled whiskey
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin (¼ ounce each)
- 1 cup lemonade, heated

How to make it
Mix the lemon juice and whiskey, add gelatin and let sit for a few minutes. Add heated lemonade, stir and pour into mason jars. Place the jars in the fridge to set.

"Champagne Showers (feat. Natalia Kills)" by LMFAO

How many songs can one duo write about booze? It's a rhetorical question, since LMFAO's party rocking is still a welcome theme. Apparently you think so, as the track is now No. 4 on Billboard Club charts. With a synth line that sounds like sparkling white wine spraying all over the place, Redfoo and SkyBlu take the act of celebrating a victory with some bubbly and make it sound kind of dirty.

Live happily ever after

Storyville rewrites the way you do clubbing by paying more attention to cocktails Be sure to try the Lady Day

THURSTY

LUKE.ONEIL@METRO.US

Night clubs are known for lots of things. Dancing is one of those things. So is prowling for sketchy hookups. And perhaps most renowned is blowing hundreds of dollars on bottle service so everyone knows how important you are. Conspicuously absent from that list is enjoying quality cocktails and bar service. Storyville, the re-imagining of the longtime Saint space in the Back Bay, could change that perception.

The bar program in its intimate, speakeasy-like Bordello Room is off to a good start in that regard, with Bill Codman (recently of Island Creek Oyster and Woodward) at the helm, as well as inventive food from Louis DiBiccari of Sel de la Terre.

The focus here is on seminal New Orleans-style cocktails and a full range of tiki drinks and fizzes, as well as Codman's own neo-classic recipes. One standout, the Lady Day, is a perfect (if unpredictable) pairing of bitter with bitter, with Campari and passion fruit taking a gin base. The sweetening touch of honey and a softening egg white play back and forth on the citrusy edge. Another must-try — the Pineapple Fizz, made with pineapple and sage-infused tequila shaken with citrus and an egg white to a fluffy consistency — is supremely quaffable.

A Day At The Races represents from the tiki realm, but interestingly eschews the de facto rum base. Made with Beefeater 24, falernum, lemon and pomegranate, it's like a more sophisticated version of a Mind Eraser, with a palate-cleaning champagne float toward the end.

▶ Storyville: This could be the new look of clubbing.

Club membership

"What I wanted to do with crafted cocktails itself isn't revolutionary," Codman says. "Putting it inside a club is."

It's an approach that will hopefully rub off on the clubbing crowd.

"I think the club people will come and embrace it, because there's certainly nothing like this available anywhere else."

Next door in the club room, the cocktail list is more streamlined, but still interesting, considering that yes, they do have bottle service. Here the focus is again on fresh ingredients, but the menu is broken into four types of cordials that guests can mix with their spirit of choice. One highlight is the Cafe Mole, a base made with fresh-ground coffee bean, cocoa, vanilla, orange peel and chipotle. Whether you take it with tequila, vodka, rum or whiskey is up to you.

WHAT THE DJ SAYS

DJ Premier is a walking piece of hip-hop history. Being the go-to producer for icons like Notorious B.I.G., Nas, Rakim and Jay-Z has led to more than a few classics in his discography. And when you add in his own Gang Starr hits with partner Guru, it's easy to believe that he knows a thing or two about rocking a party. Here are his sure-shot party rockers.

▶ 'Full Clip' by Gang Starr: "With the 'Big L, R.I.P.' at the top of the song, it's real sentimental and speaks to his legacy. Now it's Guru's legacy too with him passing."

▶ 'Simon Says' by Pharoahe Monch: "[He takes] the 'Godzilla' sample and keeps it simple. Then it just goes so lyrical, the way Pharoahe spits. It feels good to watch the crowd lose it to that."

▶ 'Hip-Hop' by Dead Prez: "Big song! The energy of that record just tears the club up."

▶ 'Mass Appeal' by Gang Starr: "It's the bright twinkles in the track on that one. It's just addictive."

Thorogood old days

The lead Destroyer takes a trip back to '2120 South Michigan Ave.' and records the songs that helped him learn the blues

Of all the cover songs on George Thorogood and the Destroyers' new album, "2120 South Michigan Ave." it is probably the title track that the singer and guitarist has had the longest connection with.

"I played that one in high school in a battle of the bands," he reminisces with a laugh. "We didn't win it!"

The song is an instrumental, originally recorded by the Rolling Stones, and named after the Chicago address of the legendary Chess Records. Thorogood named the album as such because, with a few exceptions, all of the songs were originally recorded by artists on the Chess label. When he talks about these artists he lights up like a kid sharing baseball card stats.

"He went to prison in the '50s to do time because he wouldn't volunteer for the draft," Thorogood notes about Willie Dixon, who wrote three of the album's 13 tracks. "He was a conscientious objector and he took his case to court and lost and went to prison for it. I always admired his conviction. He was also a Golden Gloves boxer! And so was Bo Diddley at one time. These guys did a lot of different stuff."

Thorogood himself did a lot of different stuff. He was a semi-professional baseball player before he turned music into a full-time career. But how does that compare with the rough and tumble lives of the original bluesmen?

"It's a matter of degree," says Thorogood. "Everybody's had a rough and tumble life. It's just a matter of what kinds of tumbles you've had over the years. Everybody has trials and tribulations. I often say that the one emotion that all human beings can relate to is pain. ... Joy is the exception, not the rule."

Thorogood says he counts himself fortunate enough to feel that joy in his blues.

"Most people don't have happy lives, which is why people cling to entertainment, especially music," he says, "and especially rock."

G-G-G-GLAD

Thorogood is probably known best for his blues rock hits, "Bad to the Bone" and "I Drink Alone." He says despite whatever new material he's promoting, he is always glad to play these tunes for his fans.

"Nobody wants to hear any new songs from me anyway," he says. "They want to hear the old ones. They always have!"

He's not saying this to feel sorry for himself — he's saying it because he knows the importance that a classic rock song has on the lives of the people who go to see him in concert.

"People are going to work. They don't like to work. They're not happy with their marriage. They've got a toothache. They're stuck in traffic. And then 'Jumpin' Jack Flash' comes on the radio, and they can make it through the day. That gets them going."

This dual exhibition features artists Catalina Viejo Lopez de Roda — who paints striking, somewhat surreal portraits with unusual frames — and Joshua Durant, who paints birds that seem to have been formed from mist. They've made a few collaborations, and those are the best of all, showing the interaction between two intense minds in a gorgeous explosion of color and form.

For New England, another Jets week

It doesn't get any bigger, whether the Pats admit it or not Ryan, Sanchez clearly up for this weekend

It's Jets week.

Whether the Patriots admit it or not, it's the biggest week of the regular season. And it has been for some time now.

Some two months ago, Tom Brady admitted on WEEI's "Dennis and Callahan" that he'd "never get over" the loss to the Jets last postseason.

Well, he can take a step in the right direction this weekend when the two teams meet again.

The Pats come in at 3-1, while the Jets, at 2-2, are reeling from a 34-17 beatdown by Baltimore.

"Obviously it wasn't one of their better days; we've all been there before," coach Bill Belichick said. "But I think on balance when you look at the football team across the board — not just a handful of plays — but you look at them across the board, they're a solid team."

"New England is the best team in the league, but we want to be the best in the league."
REX RYAN

And they tend to be even more solid when it comes to the Pats. That goes double for quarterback Mark Sanchez.

Based on quarterback rating, two of Sanchez's top three career games have come against New England — including in the playoffs last year. It's clear Sanchez is often locked in when up against the Pats ... and you already know Rex Ryan is.

"To think that we were just going to accept that, 'Yeah, well, we can't beat those guys?' No way in heck," Ryan said. "We're here to beat everybody. New England is the best team in the league, but we want to be the best in the league. That hasn't changed one bit. We want to beat them."

Clearly, Ryan is still infatuated with beating the Patriots.

Belichick is still set on pretending it's just another game over the course of a long season.

Yep — that's Jets week.

Blazers on lookout for new arena deal

Team eyes 2013 return after deciding to skip 2012 season Ideal situation would be an NHL partnership

As the Boston Bruins are gearing up to open a new season, their former co-tenants at the Garden, the Blazers, are still searching for a home.

Back in September, the indoor lacrosse team suspended operations for the 2012 NLL season after lease negotiations broke down with Delaware North, the company that runs the Causeway Street arena.

The Blazers were purely tenants at the Garden, paying rent and giving up revenue streams. Now, president and GM Doug Reffue told Metro, they're looking for something more solid — ideally, an NHL team buying part of the franchise.

"We need a partner," Reffue said. "We don't just need a landlord."

The Blazers, Reffue said, are "currently in discussions" with two NHL teams about such a deal, as well as Howard Baldwin, whose company runs the AHL's Connecticut Whale.

Reffue's informal deadline to have a deal done is mid-February. If the Blazers cannot show the NLL they have a lease in place by May 31, control of the franchise will revert to the league.

Does that mean the Blazers are definitely leaving Boston? Not necessarily. There are arenas other than the Garden; and with the right partner, they could find a home in the area.

"We worked like missionaries to grow the sport of box lacrosse in New England," Reffue said. "We need an arena partner that shares that burden."

MLB. Francona to booth

Francona joining Fox for ALCS

Terry Francona doesn't have a new managing gig yet. That doesn't mean he's hard up for work. The former Red Sox skipper is joining Fox Sports as a commentator during the ALCS, the network said yesterday. Francona will fill in for Tim McCarver (reportedly out with a medical issue) for at least two games. METRO
